THE CHILD LABOR QUESTION.

Some Comments by a Writer Who Knows the Subject.

Making children self-supporting at ten is the horrible suggestion of a Chicago pedagogue, comments a writer in American Medicine. A farmer will not let a horse be self-supporting until it is near the adult period. We have called attention to the fact that children have always helped to support themselves, and that the work, until the deadly modern factory arose, was invariably wholesome, more or less outdoor exercise, in a rural environment.

Work of itself is normal, and believed to be needed for development.
If we do not impose it, children invent it for themselves. We have also mentioned the fact that the modern poor man still needs the child's assistance if the family is large. If the law demands schooling, as it undoubtedly should—to some extent at least—then the instruction should be of a character to enable the child to help its parents as soon as possible.
There is a growing impression that we must modify our schools to this end, by introducing the training features formerly part of the home life, but now impossible in crowded industrial communities.

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE.

Newspaper Man Was Casting an Anchor to Windward.

Although Joseph Pulitzer still keeps in active charge of his great newspaper the New York World, his son, Ralph Pulitzer, has taken over some of the burdens of editorial and business direction.

There is a baby in the Ralph Pulitzer family, a small son, who is the pride of his grandfather as well as of his father. A short time ago there was an editorial conference at the house of Ralph Pulitzer, and John Slaght, one of the star reporters on the World, was called to attend.
While waiting to go before the council Slaght sat in the hall of the house, before an open fireplace. The nurse came in with Pulitzer Third.

"Nurse," said Slaght, "do you want to do something for an ambitious, hardworking and honest young man?"

"Sure," the nurse replied.
"Well," instructed Slaght, "when that baby begins to talk, you teach him to say, first thing: 'Slaght; grand man; great reporter.'"

A Successful Prophet.

Across the water are the handsome residences upon the "Neck," the settlement of which marks one more epoch in the history of the town.
Marblehead Neck is a small strip of land containing some 300 acres, and a half a century ago it was used for pasturing of cattle, being fit for little else. The land was barren and rocky, and it is small wonder the good folk of Marblehead laughed when its owner stoutly declared that it would one day be covered with gold dollars, and at the less preposterous statement of one of the smaller owners who declared that when his claim was worth $10,000 he would sell it. It seemed preposterous enough in those days, but the Neck today is worth a fabulous price, and the summer residences which cover it represent small fortunes in themselves.—Travel Magazine.

DRESS GOODS

We have one of the most complete lines of popular priced Dress Goods in Vinita now on exhibition. The patterns and colors are absolutely right and the prices are equally so. Our purchases were made early in the year. We did not wait until fall, when goods had advanced ten to twenty-five per cent., before buying. We are the original Early Birds and we got the Worm. While we may be a little stuck up about it we are not selfish—we are going to divide with you and give you a good big slice of our good luck. That's The Golden Rule way:
